Dear Tom:

I herewith enclose that Masonic Diploma, you might call it, which your grandfather was given back in 1859, and I am so delighted you can have it. I very much want you to keep it. After all, your son, grandsons, and their sons for generations untold will be interested in having this to pass along.

It was among father's things, and I am not a mason, and my name is in no way associated with this. Therefore, it is right and just that you should have it. On top of that, as you probably know, dad had a particular fondness for you, which I understand perfectly, and I think he would be so pleased for you to have it.

There is no other news now, except the family gathered for the most confusing and exhausting time of the year, known as Christmas! I hope everything is going well with you.

With warm regards,

Cordially yours,

Jim ¹³

Dear Jim:

The ancient Masonic document was safely received this morning and I am fascinated with it. These things bring one closer with the past and add to the family background, for which we may well be proud.

Jim, this is a most generous act on your part, to pass this heirloom along to me. You are really more entitled to it than I as your grandfather, James was the oldest son of the family. However, since I am carrying on my grandfather's given name of Thomas I am delighted to have it and pass it along to my son and grandson bearing the name of Thomas. We shall cherish it and keep it safe to pass along to future generations. Thank you for a most wonderful Christmas gift.

We are all well, although still recovering from a wonderful but strenuous Christmas day - with all the family at our house, including Homer, Myra and Ann.

Best wishes to all of you for the New Year.

Sincerely,

Tom

Dear Tom:

Nothing pleases me quite so much as to know that you, your son, and your grandson, all having the name of Thomas Wickenden, will cherish and appreciate this family heirloom that goes back to 1859.

When I am down sometime, I shall want to see what repair work was necessary.

Nancy and the children join in sending warmest regards to you and to Dee.

Cordially yours,
