CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER, SUNDAY, MAY 25, 1947

PRAISE AND GIFTS HONOR WICKENDEN

Case Alumni and Trustees Bid President Farewell

with mixed feelings, marked by loud cheers for his leadership and quiet regret at his departure, 729 alumni of Case School of Applied Science and the board of trustees bade farewell to President Wil-liam E. Wickenden at the school's annual alumni reunion yesterday. Officials and former students, at a banguat in the Cloveland Club at

Officials and former students, at a banquet in the Cleveland Club at Hotel Tudor Arms, said good-by to the man who will retire Aug. 31 aft-er guiding the engineering school 18 years. He was given two checks, one of $4,760 from the trustees and one of $1,500 from alumni. Honors, in the form of framed certificates, went to two alumni, Charles C. Bradford and Austin L. Vanderhoof, both for service to the alumni association, and to Mrs. George Ashley Tomlinson, Case benefactor, who recently provided funds for a new building. An Auspicious Hour

An Auspicious Hour

Dr. Wickenden, who was intro-duced by Elmer L. Lindseth, presi-dent of the Cleveland Electric Il-luminating Co. and a member of the class of 1925, who was toast-master, mentioned that Case on July 1 would become Case Institute of Technology and said: "It (the new Case) is coming into the world at an auspicious hour. Higher education is today in a state of revolution. Higher education is expanding in a manner without precedent. The public institutions must ultimately absorb most of this expansion, which is utterly beyond the resources of private philantro-phy." The president said the private

The president said the private schools would redefine their goals and reduce their enrollments, continuing:

"To do this, we are convinced, is a greater service to higher educa-tion than to handle the largest pos-sible numbers, for if education is to remain an intimate discipleship and not become just a mass discipline, and if colleges are not to become as parochial as high schools, but are to be in any sense cosmopolitan in make-up and atmosphere, our pri-vate institutions must do that job."

Toasts Past and Future

Toasts Past and Future He observed that he would be-come the only president to head both Case School of Applied Science and Case School of Tech-nology and offered two toasts, "one to the past and one to the future." "To Case School of Applied Science: may its memories ever be cherished, its founders and builders and sustainers ever revered, its ideals and standards ever pre-served, and its good name ever en-shrined in the thousands of lives which it has shaped to worthy pat-which it has shaped to worthy pat-terns, now and forever. "To Case Institute of Technology: may it be born under favoring stars, find a leader worthy of its highest possibilities, be endowed with wide and procures enuls to with vision and resources equal to its magnificent task and enjoy a happy immortality in the lives and the loyalties of countless sons such as you, now and forever."

as you, now and forever." Tribute was paid to Dr. Wicken-den by Frank A. Quail of Cleve-land trustee president, who reber of Commerce and trustee, who spoke of the trustees' "high esteem and deep affection" for the college head.

James D. Mooney of Toledo, president and chairman of the board of directors of Willys-Overland Mo-tors, Inc., a trustee and member of the class of 1908 praised Dr. Wick-enden for his philosophy that en-gineers must know not only their work but something of human relationships.

Leonard E. Weitz of Cleveland, president of the Independent Ex-plosives Co. and an alumnus of 1915, announced the three meritori-ous awards. Mrs. Tomlinson was unable to be present. A delegation of college officials and alumni took the certificate to her after the reunion. Mrs. Tomlinson, widow of Cleveland industrialist, recently gave funds for a memorial to her husband, a building to be called Tomlinson Hall, which is under

PRESIDENT WILLIAM E. WICKENDEN of Case School of Applied Science gets farewell from trustees and alumni. In the top picture the president (right) receives from Percy W. Brown, president of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce and a trustee, checks from the officials and former students. Below, Austin L. Vanderhoof (left) and Charles C. Bradford, both Clevelarders, display certificates they were awarded for meritorious alumni service.