Wales-Congo Link

In the Footstep of Henry Morton STANLEY
The Welshman
in the Heart of Darkness

Sir Henry Morton STANLEY is the greatest explorer of Africa. He found Dr David LIVINGSTONE and resolved one of the most intractable geographical problems that had troubled generations, since the time of the ancients Greeks: The Source of the Nile. Despite the fact that he was a Welshman, very few Welsh are themselves informed or aware of his exploits. Through the historical figure of Stanley and others British and Welsh who travelled in Africa and Congo, our dream is to link the Democratic Republic of Congo and Wales, through partnership projects even twinning cities, taking the advantage of Welsh community network projects and the historical links and meetings between the two peoples and including new challenges and new opportunities (Fair trade, etc.).

“When you arrive in a new village, it is a big mistake to dance starting with the left leg, when the inhabitant themselves are dancing starting with the right one” (Congoese Proverb)
