ABOUT REBELS AND VISIONARIES

WHY ELKA

A brand that echoes my vision. ELKA Watch Co. was launched in 2022. How and why? I dreamt of developing my own brand but above all I wanted a brand with a story, truth & credibility. I chose to call it by my nickname, ELKA. Since I love the 60s, the products and the aesthetics of that era I have decided to make it my design line for this and future collections.

When I wanted to protect the name, I realised that a brand called Elka Watch had already existed but had disappeared around the 60s & 70s precisely during the timeframe that I have chosen to base my designs on. This defunct Elka Watch was named after Eduard Louis Kiek from Amsterdam. I looked through its archives and realised that the brand had strong designs and had worked closely with other big names in the watch industry such as Ulysse Nardin, Heuer, Rolex, Minerva, to name only a few. So, without reviving the brand, I wanted to pay a tribute to this old Dutch brand with my first 2 series.

ELKA D SERIES

The design of the D Series is inspired by a dial created by Ulysse Nardin for the defunct Elka Watch, the same hands, the same applied indexes.

Today the collection is composed of 8 similar dials in different colors.

BACK TO BASICS TO A SIMPLER TIME TO AUTHENTICITY

ELKA watches are inspired by the times when a product was kept for life. You invested in durability, quality and uniqueness.

The mindset is to step back to that period in the 1960s. To those pure and colourful aesthetics we still remember; back to the magical dreams of the space race, the Beatles, the Rolling Stones and Woodstock; a return to the struggles, the changes, the rebellious spirit that so marked that decade.

What if we had never really left that decade? What if we went back to it, body and soul, to become once again those enthusiastic and revolutionary people who made society move so much? The same values demonstrated at that time are still strong today. Boldness and elegance are timeless, whether they date from 1960s or the 2020s.

ELKA D SERIES

The idea for this model is rooted in watchmaking history, when pocket watches were common. The watch case is the same as the one used for the ELKA X Series, whose shape is taken from the shape of a pocket watch. The aim of this design is to have an organic object in hand, something like a pebble, something we want to touch, to feel.

The ELKA X Series is inspired by a flight instrument created by Heuer for the defunct Elka Watch. The watch case is the same as for the ELKA D Series, whose shape is taken from that of a pocket watch. 2 models, but 2 different characters.

ELKA X SERIES

The Elka X Serie is the sporty version, equipped with cut-edge rough leather straps or Nato straps. 5 dials, a black one with numbers and hands equipped with Superluminova that looks like burnt tritium, another version with a dark blue dial and white Superluminova and a beige version that remains the color of a pocket watch made by the former brand - and 2 new models in khaki green and another in a colour gradient from beige to black.

Pronounce ELKA "KHI"

Khaki is everywhere these days, it's even the new black, a colour that goes with almost everything.

The Elka brand, with its X series (pronounced 'Khi' in Greek), already has the name for it! So what could be more natural than to offer 2 new versions of watches, either the Khaki Beige gradient to black (Elka X09) or the Khaki Green (Elka X15). The first version of these 2 models comes with a Sand Beige Nato strap.

They are also available with a vintage leather strap for a more adventurous look, or with a nubuck leather strap for a more sporty chic look.

ELKA X SERIES

The term khaki originally referred to a more or less pale yellowish beige, which makes perfect sense when you consider that it was the typical colour of the military uniform worn by India's armies in the early 20th century. The word comes from the Persian khâh, meaning 'dust' (hence the spelling 'khaki', which is sometimes used). Later, khaki was extended to include the other colours of military uniforms to denote a light brown tending towards green.

ELKA ARINIS

Following the successful launch of their first watch line, inspired by the rich past and history of the now-defunct Elka Watch Cy from Amsterdam, the brand is back with a new timepiece. This model stays true to the codes of the young brand and takes the form of a stylish diver's watch. This watch boasts the same dimensions, chevê-box sapphire crystal, lugs shape, and emblematic side edge line as the original series. The watch is adorned with a ceramic ring bezel and superluminova numerals, and is water-resistant to 20 bar (200m). The watch is named after the ancient name of the village of Saint-Blaise, which dates back to the first millennium. This name was chosen for many reasons: the village's location on the shores of Switzerland's Lake Neuchâtel and the region's rich history, which includes the Celts and the Palafittes civilizations. These ancient people built dwellings on the lake's poles to allow for fluctuating water levels. The watch's design is inspired by the region's history, with elements that recall the Celtic wheel found in the lake, the stock of ceramics found at Chemin du Diable in Saint-Blaise, and the lake itself. These elements are reflected in the watch's shape, material used such as the bezel in ceramic.

ELKA ARINIS

Taking a stroll around the old Arinis village, today called Saint-Blaise, you'll be able to uncover stories but also history. From the palafittes found in the lake to the old wheel, including the ceramic found on an old roman road, this small region near the Neuchâtel Lake in Switzerland is a small jewel demanding to be discovered. Come discover the depths of celt civilisation on the shore of the lake with your new ELKA Diver's watch. The Arinis watch has been inspired by all the history surrounding the wonderful region of Saint-Blaise. Ceramics was found on an old roman path, imposing the idea of a ceramic made bezel. The old wheel, being a strong and intrinsically regional object, has given it's colour to parts of the collection. The engraved fishes at the back of the watch are a small hint to the fascinating artifacts found in the lake. A thousand years of history, wrapped around your wrist.

ELKA X HEROES

ELKA Watch Co has teamed up with Heroes Media to produce a watch combining its DNA with those of the "Heroes" magazines for limited edition of 25 pieces. From the first glance, there is no doubt that the "Heroes" spirit is there. Black, white, a raven hidden on the dial and a chic adventurer's face. This is the new ELKA Watch Co. watch made in partnership with Montre Heroes. A 40.8 mm diameter case in sandblasted and blackened stainless steel with "gun" PVD treatment, a matt black dial with a neo-retro design, white hands and numerals: the "Heroes" graphic DNA is fully respected.

The Heroes model is inspired by the X Series and the design of a pocket watch. "The objective of this design is to have an organic object in your hands, like a pebble, something you want to touch and feel," says Hakim El Kadiri. Several prototypes were necessary to arrive at the final result. A watch in "Heroes" colours with a very fifties style and a Café Racer spirit.

This model is also the first from ELKA Watch Co in a sandblasted "gun" colour version, with the famous raven engraved on the case back and discreetly printed in white between the two inner strands of the black Nato strap that covers the watch. A must-have.

ELKA X ACE

Rekindling an old friendship over a serendipitous, shared tie with a watch brand lost to time; Celebrating diversity and friendship with the Ace x Elka Watch Company Diversity Series. Old friends Hakim El Kadiri of Elka Watch Company and Alon Ben Joseph of Ace Jewelers reconnected over shared ties by the now defunct ELKA of Amsterdam. Fast forward several months, and they're proud to present the Ace x Elka Watch Company Diversity Series, a set of four limited edition watches each using a different numeric script on the gradient blue dials: Western Arabic, Eastern Arabic / Hindi, Chinese and Hebrew, respectively.

ELKA X11-0804

ELKA X ACE "DIVERSITY"

Whilst discussing ideas for their future collaboration, Alon pitched the idea to create a set of four watches based on this design but using different numerical scripts, just like the ELKA of old did with Alon's highly-coveted Hebrew script dial. The result is the Diversity Series. The collection consists of four watches, each with a gradient blue dial, but featuring different scripts for the numerals: Eastern Arabic / Hindi, Chinese, and Hebrew respectively, complimented by one using classical Western Arabic numerals. And purists rejoice: unlike the standard production X-Series, there's no date window on the Diversity Series watches. "Collecting watches is a passion that transcends borders, languages and cultures. The source of inspiration for the Diversity Series may have been a Hebrew script Elka watch from my personal collection, but we expanded this concept to celebrate diversity on a global scale, as well as the friendships that form over shared hobbies and pastimes. I trust these will find proud homes with collectors all over the world - and I'm particularly excited to see where the different dial variations will end up", adds Alon. Of these four types of numbering, three use the double O at twelve o'clock, like the standard production X-Series. Only the Hebrew version has the number 60. The Hebrew version with a blue dial was sold out and has been replaced by a green version.

ELKA X ACE "ESSENCE"

After an exploration of different numeric scripts with the 2023 Diversity Series, Ace Jewelers & Elka Watch return with the D-Series Essence. This dial of this limited edition is devoid of any markings -save for the Elka wordmark- reducing the concept of a wristwatch to its bare essence whilst emphasizing the clear-cut lines of the case and the dramatic dome of the crystal. The resulting look? The commanding presence of the deep blue dial and stainless steel case steals the spotlight, orchestrating a grand performance that seamlessly blends intrinsic tranquility with mesmerizing allure.

Alon Ben Joseph of Ace Jewelers explains: From the moment I saw Hakim's vision for the new ELKA Watches I fell in love with the case design. The lines and the dome of the glass is so beautiful, that I immediately proposed Hakim to create a collab where we take all printing off the dial besides the logo. Hakim is such a good friend and true watchmaker; a man of deeds & not just words, he did not reply for several weeks and then suddenly sent me a package without prior notice. In that shipment was a prototype for this watch. It was love at first sight. I am not only extremely honoured and proud to be able to be friends with Hakim, but to work with him. I hope the watch collecting community will enjoy our newest watch design as much as they the first series."

For Hakim, the absence of any numerals also adds another philosophical dimension to the earlier Diversity series: "With the Diversity Series, we paid homage to different cultures & languages around the globe. But now, we have gone beyond words, beyond languages. A timepiece with no numerals on it, creating a sense of integration and universal comprehension. The blue dial draws you in and the metallic hands show you the way, those two components being all that's needed for your journey through time. Time doesn't belong to anyone, and yet, no matter where we come from, we all understand it. This new watch reflects that feeling, a universal comprehension."

Time doesn't belong to anyone, however, 25 collectors from all over the world will be able to own this new timepiece, thus sharing an idea born between two friends. Two friends who don't share the same mother tongue and yet found a way.

FEATURES

MILANESE MESH

The Milanese bracelet is also known as Milanese mesh bracelet as it is made of intertwined loops (fine mesh). It is available in a thin and robust version to give the watch an elegant or solid appearance. It fits well on any wrist.

This type of bracelet was made by hand as early as the 13th century. In the 1920s, the process was revived by German manufacturers, which led it to a new wave of popularity. Milanese bracelets are visually distinguished by their dense, close-knit construction formed from steel springs which give them a smooth, fine surface. Milanese bracelets are extremely comfortable to wear and allow the skin to breathe easily.

TROPIC STRAP

A touch of modernity in a classic design

The Elka Arinis Tropic Rubber Strap is an ode to the golden age of diving watches in the 1960s. Combining functionality and sophistication, this hi-tec genuine rubber strap pays homage to the Tropic straps of the past with a tapered tail, two loops and a textured pattern true to the era. Despite its vintage look, this is a thoroughly modern bracelet, with easy spring bars and exceptional durability. The Elka Arinis Vintage Tropic bracelet's small perforations are carefully designed to allow air and water to circulate, offering the wearer great comfort in hot climates. Key features : Genuine rubber, Made in Switzerland, Black or Blue colour, Size 20/18 mm, Highly resistant to the elements and temperature.

NATO STRAP

Many people believe that the NATO bracelet is named after the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (NATO). Therefore, the common story is that the watch was worn by NATO forces, but this is not technically the case. In reality, the name is short for NATO Stocking Number, a term that simply refers to the fact that the bracelet could be purchased in the NATO supply shop. The original NATO bracelet was born in 1973 in response to the British Ministry of Defence's need to provide a highly durable watch strap for the British Army. The MoD's objective was to design a watchband resistant under all conditions. The aim was to overcome the problems encountered with the bracelets of the time: Problems of moisture on the leather in tropical climates, the risk of reflection of the steel bracelet during a military mission, the poor reliability of rubber bracelets, as well as the risk of losing the watch due to the breakage of the spring bars (including those in the buckle). They were only available in the colour admiral grey and were all 20 millimetres wide. The bracelets were made of nylon.

I like the idea of a generation including all former generations, ideas and genders and do not want to rekindle the design philosophy from the moment when the former brand Elka faded out; my aim is to reactivate the ideals of the legendary 60s. The ingenious ideas, the revolutionary vision, the forward-thinking design principles and the loud political statements. That generation had so much in common with today's folks who all demand change, fairness & independency in their work environment, they dare to speak up and generate countless pioneering ideas. They strive to change the system for the better. They actually do care about our world. The generation ELKA was then and still is a powerful movement of stylish & kind individuals who are attracted by simplicity, authenticity and sophisticated design classics.

ABOUT

Founded in 1877 in Amsterdam by Eliazer Kiek, inventor of the tactile watch for the blind and watchmaker to Queen Juliana of the Netherlands. In 1949, the Elka Watch opened its Swiss branch in La Chaux-de-Fonds (it produced wristwatches of course but also pocket watches, braille watches, chronographs, chess and signal clocks). Then, in the mid-1970s, the brand disappeared along with Ernst Louis Kiek, grandson and last heir.

ELKA Watch Co. of 2022 has no connection with the defunct Amsterdam brand. We just wanted to pay a tribute to the old Dutch brand with our first 2 models.
